

OwlCon XXX

Rice University
Houston, TX

15 February 2011

To Any and All Convention Organizers:

If you are considering bringing MechCorps Battle Pods to your convention, I have only two words to say. Do it! They have been coming to OwlCon for several years now, and each year we are more and more impressed. We will certainly have them attend as often as they want to come back.

Our convention is held on a college campus, with very limited space, so we have Dealers and gaming in the same area, with MechCorps all the way in the back of that area. Not only do they attract gamers and passersby alike to their pods, they are always completely professional, and work with us to contribute as much as they can to our efforts. This year they were able to use a projection system already located in the area to show video of the Mech Combat on a huge screen, which provided a constant stream of bonus entertainment to everyone in the room.

Additionally, I am very impressed with how professional their entire crew is. During move-in and load-out they show they are a well-oiled machine. Even with all the gear they have to move, they get into the space and set up in excellent time, and move out of the space just as efficiently, with no impact on the other Dealers around them. In short, we couldn't be more pleased with MechCorps, and we look forward to having them back at OwlCon next year.

Sincerely,

Angelo Benedetto
Co-Director – OwlCon XXX
Rice University, Houston, TX
www.owlcon.com